Middough Achieves Safety Milestone

Middough achieves 5,000,000 hours of safe work without a recordable injury.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (August 27, 2014) — Middough Inc., a top ranking U.S. engineering, architecture, and management services company, is pleased to announce that it has achieved 5,000,000 hours of safe work with no recordable injuries. This milestone represents the outcome of a corporate culture whose core is safety.

Middough as a company has been vigilant about safe work environments for its employees and clients around the world for decades. In an ever changing landscape of new codes and regulations, the company has strived to provide safe working conditions throughout its facilities, and has trained its employees to be safety-focused when working at client locations. This milestone comes on the heels of receiving five significant environmental health and safety (EHS) industry awards for work performed last year.

The company introduced its “Safe By Choice” EHS excellence program a few years ago to develop its EHS culture. As a result, Middough has improved communication, collected and capitalized on leading indicator data, improved training, and invested more time in promoting safe work practices and healthy life styles. “It’s nice to see the result of our efforts. Middough’s accomplishment signifies the commitment we all have in striving to keep everyone safe at work, as well as at home,” states Carl Wendell, executive vice president and chief operating officer of Middough.

As the company approaches its 65th year in business, clients have come to know that Middough is serious about safety and consistently promotes and achieves goals, awards, and milestones to keeps its employees, families, and clients out of harm’s way whenever possible. “Being safe is a choice and we hope everyone understands that at Middough, it’s a core value,” says Tom Sexton, environmental health and safety manager.
